

### Compliance Analysis Report for Amendment No. 3

#### 1. Understanding Content

- Parties Involved: Fox Mobile Entertainment, Inc. ("Fox") and Glu Mobile Inc. ("Licensee").
- Core Intent: The amendment modifies the original Wireless Content License Agreement by extending the term for certain properties and updating the notice provision.
- Key Changes:
  - Extension of Term: The rights granted are extended until March 31, 2008, for specified properties.
  - Notice Provision: Updates the contact for notices to the General Counsel of Glu Mobile Inc.

#### 2. Regulatory Knowledge

- Applicable Regulations:
  - GDPR: If personal data is involved in the licensing or distribution of content, compliance with GDPR is necessary, especially regarding data processing and user consent.
  - CCPA: If the Licensee collects personal information from California residents, compliance with CCPA is required, including disclosures and consumer rights.
  - HIPAA: Not applicable unless health-related content is involved.
  - FCPA: Relevant if there are international transactions or dealings with foreign officials.

#### 3. Analysis for Compliance

- Data Protection: The amendment does not explicitly mention data protection measures or compliance with GDPR or CCPA. This is a potential compliance gap.
- Ambiguous Terms: The term "Effective Date" is mentioned but not defined in the amendment. This could lead to confusion regarding when the rights actually commence.
- Missing Clauses: There are no clauses addressing data privacy or consumer rights, which are critical under GDPR and CCPA.

#### 4. Outcome Summary

- Compliance Issues:
  - Lack of explicit data protection measures for personal data handling.
  - Ambiguous definition of "Effective Date".
  - Absence of clauses addressing consumer rights under CCPA.
- Suggestions for Remediation:
  - Include a clause detailing compliance with GDPR and CCPA, specifying how personal data will be handled and consumer rights will be respected.
  - Define the "Effective Date" clearly to avoid ambiguity.
  - Consider adding a data protection impact assessment if personal data is involved.

#### 5. Additional Review Required

- A legal professional should review the amendment to ensure that it aligns with all applicable laws and regulations, particularly regarding data protection and consumer rights.
